MISSOULA--

Credits available and the costs of enrolling in the "Food for Camping and Backpacking" course this summer at the University of Montana have been announced by the UM Department of Home Economics.

The course will be taught July 27-29 at UM by Dian Thomas, author of "Roughing It Easy," through the UM Departments of Health and Physical Education and Home Economics.

Sara C. Steensland, home economics department chairman at UM, said the course is available for two undergraduate credits at a cost of $42 ($21 per credit). Persons who wish to audit only the first day's lecture demonstration may do so for $10.50. No credit can be earned and no field experience included for class auditors.

Extension day students will register for the course at 8 a.m. July 26 in room 215 of the UM Women's Center.

Thomas, of Salt Lake City, Utah, who has appeared on over 300 television shows, taught home economics at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, and has lectured throughout the U.S., Canada, Japan and Mexico. Her book, "Roughing It Easy," was on the New York ^{Times} Best-Seller list more than two months and was highlighted as Book of the Month for the Field and Stream Book Club.

For additional information about the "Food for Camping and Backpacking" course, interested persons may contact Steensland at the UM Department of Home Economics office, room 207 of the UM Women's Center or by phoning 243-4841.

Workshop applications may be obtained from the UM Center for Continuing Education and Summer Programs, Room 107, Main Hall, University of Montana, Missoula, Mont. 59812, or by phoning 243-2900.
